In ENGL 105, your final portfolio is worth 60% of your course grade.

Your portfolio will consist of two final papers, each of which must cite multiple sources (including in-text parenthetical citations and a works cited) using MLA or APA format.

You will receive a failing grade for your portfolio if your papers do not meet the source requirement stated above.

Composition Program Policy dictates that an ENGL 105 instructor may not accept a paper for portfolio scoring if it does not meet the source requirements by Week 12 of the semester.

In Dr. A 's ENGL 105 sections, you must cite the required readings for each learning module. Additional readings may be included at the instructor's discretion but may not replace required readings.

As a reminder, you must complete all required drafts of all essays, even though you will select just two essays to go into your final portfolio.

We will conduct a portfolio review of all three portfolio-eligible essays in Week 13 of the semester.

Portfolio papers may be revised until portfolios are collected in class in Week 15.

Composition faculty reserve the right to reject portfolios that do not meet minimum submission requirements, including required number or quality of drafts or documentation of sources.

Late portfolios cannot be accepted. If your portfolio is rejected by either the instructor or the scoring team, you will not pass the course.

There is plenty of time to visit the Writing & Multiliteracy Center before portfolios are due!
